1. Arrival and Informal Networking

Richard welcomed everyone to LinkUp.

2. Speaker: Louise Mullen, Volunteer Co-ordinator – Medical Detection Dogs

Louise introduced herself to the group and explained she has recently begun employment as Volunteer Co-ordinator and is currently supporting and managing 571 nationwide volunteers, which include 10 regional support groups; these groups decide their own ways to Fundraise and organise their own events with support from headquarters, there is a group in Northamptonshire. Louise said that they are looking to establish a national network of groups, and that the charity has about 400 corporate organisations as supporters including M&S.

Louise informed the group that the charity began in 2008, saying that for many years stories had been appearing around the world from people, reporting that their pet dogs could smell cancer.

Louise explained the research area of the organisation the Bio Detection Dogs are trained to identify the odour of cancer from breath or urine samples, they do not detect cancer on people. The cancer dogs have the capacity to provide 2nd line diagnostic support for cancers that are difficult to diagnose reliably such as prostate cancer. There is also continuing research to assist scientists into the development of electronic systems that mimics a dogs nose to assist in the early detection of cancer through cheap non-invasive tests, and additionally looking into the possibility that the dogs can detect a number of other cancers and diseases including: Bowel cancer, Malaria and Parkinson's Disease.

Louise said the other area of the charity the Medical Detection Dogs are trained to help people with life-threatening health conditions e.g. Diabetes, by identifying odour changes associated with their conditions and alerting them to an impending medical emergency, either by sitting up & barking or jumping up onto the persons shoulders about 20/30 minutes before a potential hypo so the person can take action, the dogs are also trained to fetch kit bags.

Richard asked what volunteering roles were available. Louise replied that there are many roles including, Collection Box Coordinators, Leaflet Distributors, Puppy Socialisers, Regional Support Coordinators, Drivers (to collect/pick up samples, clients and their dogs to and from the centre). Louise added that they have 52 paid staff, including dog trainers. Lorraine informed the group that the appropriate volunteer forms had been sent to Louise to enable promotion of the roles; Louise replied that she would pass details of all the roles to Lorraine after the meeting.

Karen asked if GP's supported the charity, Louise replied that they are presently contacting surgeries and have contacts within MK University Hospital and some London hospitals. Debbie asked if people can self-refer, or if they are referred by their GP. Louise confirmed that people can self-refer by application form, and once the completed application is received the waiting list is between 18 months and 3 years, depending on individual requirements and the severity of the medical condition. The Dogs that are placed with children who have chronic life threatening health conditions, are known as 'Team Dogs'. Louise added that Medical Detection Dogs are accredited by Assistance Dogs UK, Assistance Dogs International and Assistance Dogs Europe, and currently there are 78 dogs placed throughout the country.

Louise informed the group that they have now outgrown the space at the Great Horwood headquarters and have been granted planning permission to add more buildings; Louise referred to the Fund the future page on the website for details.

Karen asked where the dogs come from. Louise replied that Dogs can be donated by members of the public, breeders, other assistance dog charities, (often Guide Dogs) and rescue centres. They are initially tried as Bio Detection Dogs working for about 20mins a day for a positive reward. Training can take between 5/7 months though often they can tell within 3/4 weeks whether a dog is suitable, so far only 2/3 dogs have had to be re-homed. Louise stated that the Charity receive no government funding and rely entirely on donations from Trusts and the public.

Lorraine asked what breed of dogs are used. Louise replied all dog breeds have the capability, dogs are mostly a mixture of Labradors and working spaniels, though any breed has the potential to be trained if under three years old. Louise continued that sometimes a pet dog that is showing signs of alerting its owner to a particular condition can be considered for own-dog training if less than three years old, and owners will receive support with the training.
